

Preparing for Baby

If you've recently learned that you are expecting a child or of you and your spouse are beginning to have conversations about starting or expanding your family, there are some things you need to know. Let's begin by thinking about what being a parent really means.

It Does Mean:

- New Life. You will be bringing a life into the world that would have never existed were it not for you. He'll have your eyes. She'll have your hair color. This life will be a mini-version of you in many ways, and you'll want to nurture and protect him any way you can. You'll want him to have the opportunities you didn't and the knowledge you gained from your life. In many ways, it will seem this life is a second chance for you and because of that, you'll walk a fine line between letting him make his own choices when appropriate and deciding for him when necessary.
- Responsibility. Your level of responsibility will be higher than it has ever been. You'll be responsible for leadership, financial support, spiritual guidance, and loving discipline. Not only will this child expect it from you, but the world will also expect you to provide it.
- Opportunity. You will have an opportunity to mold and shape a life that could change the world for good. This responsibility is both exciting and overwhelming. Though you can't take full credit for her accomplishments, you were a major contributor. If she does great things, she will reflect positively on you. If she does bad things, she will reflect negatively on you. In both possibilities, remember that she makes her own choices. You can only do so much. Pray often and do your best. Love is not a cure-all, but helps everything.

It Does Not Mean:

- The End. It does not mean an end to fun or free time. If you're blessed with caring parents who live nearby, they might be able to take care of your child while you and your spouse have some time alone. To avoid the cost of babysitters, befriend another couple with a child close to the age of yours and choose one night each week to alternate "date nights." You'll watch their child one Friday night in exchange for them taking care of your child the next Friday night. This way you can have an evening alone with your spouse. Don't forget, there's plenty of fun to be had with your spouse and your child—it's not all diapers and feedings. Much of it is laughter, smiles and, as they say, "precious moments."

- Idealism. Everything will not go according to plan. You'll find that parenting books and advice from others doesn't always prove to be beneficial or even realistic. Each child, parent and situation is different. Parenting is not an exact science. Establish some guidelines to give you direction, but don't panic if you deviate some from the original plan.
- Perfection. Know that you will not do everything perfectly. At times, you will be impatient, overbearing, unreasonable and illogical. Apologize to your child and/or spouse when this happens. Just because you're a parent doesn't mean your decisions are always correct. Be demanding of yourself but forgiving at the same time.

Your God-given Role

No matter what, you make the calls. Don't be afraid to ask advice but don't be afraid to ignore it either. Don't measure success by whether or not your child is happy with your decisions. Your child's feelings on your decisions do not determine your worth as a parent. Throughout history, parents have been familiar with the sound of stomping feet and yells of defiance. Your child's reaction does not make your decision wrong any more than it makes it right.

Jesus refers to God as, "the good Father (Luke 11:12-14)," yet His children have stomped their feet, complained, cried, rebelled, cursed, and said, "That's not fair!" Yet He is still the good Father.

In the end, you have to do what you think is right and best for the life you brought into the world. Don't let any other person make those decisions for you.

Adapted from crosswalk.com

RELATED SCRIPTURE

Only be careful, and watch yourselves closely so that you do not forget the things your eyes have seen or let them fade from your heart as long as you live. Teach them to your children and to their children after them (Deuteronomy 4:9).

Children are a heritage from the LORD, offspring a reward from him. Like arrows in the hands of a warrior are children born in one's youth. Blessed is the man whose quiver is full of them. They will not be put to shame when they contend with their opponents in court (Psalm 127:3-5).

I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth (3 John 1:4).

quick access to checklists, forms, and questionnaires that help manage the details of pregnancy and baby's first weeks at home. This journal-sized organizer fits perfectly in a handbag, making it the ideal companion for the many travels between nightstand, desk, and practitioner's office. With space to answer questions about pregnancy and baby's birth, 40 Weeks + ultimately becomes a record of the amazing journey into parenthood!

Small Groups at Long Hollow

You can find ongoing support for every challenge in life in a small group. Visit www.longhollow.com/grow and then click the button to Launch Group Finder Now.

RELATED RESOURCES

Getting Ready for Baby: The Ultimate Organizer for the Mom-to-Be

Helene Tragos Stelian
ISBN 978-0811829410

With tips on everything from finding the perfect obstetrician to choosing the right baby gear, Getting Ready for Baby will ease first-time mothers from pregnancy to birth and beyond. An information guide, organizer, and record book all in one, everything a mother-to-be needs is stashed in this handy and portable planner.

40 Weeks +: The Essential Pregnancy Organizer

Dani Rasmussen and Antoinette Perez
ISBN 978-0976647911

Finally! A well designed, well researched, easy-to-use organizer for every stage of pregnancy. Forget ducks and bunny rabbits--this clean, sophisticated organizer is designed for modern parents-to-be. An essential addition to your pregnancy library, this handy tool simplifies the process of preparing for a baby. Tabs provide